Agenda item 1:	Decide DB to use (DynamoDB or MongoDB)
Discussion:	The team discussed the pros and cons of DynamoDB vs. MongoDB. Taking into account Dr. Kadiyala and Dr. Wei's opinion. DynamoDB being Amazon hosted and fully managed database we would only have to write interface layers for our requests and we would not have to host an instance. MongoDB, we will need to run an instance
Conclusions:	The team concluded that DynamoDB would be most beneficial because we don't have to host it or manage the resources ourselves.

	Agenda item 3: Delegating work

Agenda item 1:	Technology Discussion (Lambda, ECS, etc.)
Discussion:	Jacob Hollis presented a problemflow.drawio to the team and explained his understanding of lambda and how to implement it into our project. It was decided python would be the best language to use for lambda. The team discussed the best way to deploy frontend would be through ECS. There was some concerns on the best

Action item 3:	If Ngan Hanh Tran needs help with ECS deployment the team will assist.

Agenda item 2:	Iteration Plan
Discussion:	The team worked on our "Iteration 1 Plan". A file was shared in google docs and we discussed the best components to incorporate into our first iteration plan. We also discussed the required technologies which pertained to: frontend SPA hosted on ECS / Fargate, backend Lambda Functions with database and codebuild interfaces.
Conclusions:	The team concluded the most important features to include in the first iteration plan for the front end was a homepage with clickable components and student interface with only 1 practice to test. For the databse we concluded user table, classroom table, and problem tables design/structure idea (more specific details in iteraiton plan). We also determined we would need to have a meeting with Dr. Kadiyala this week.
